DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

This brick structure, formerly the Hopewell School is now a private residence. It is located on the west side of Hopewell Road just south of its junction with West Washington Street, formerly U.S. Route 40 west of Hagerstown in Washington County, Maryland. It is situated on level ground with its principal facade, an end wall facing east.

The building is a one story brick structure resting on fieldstone foundations. It is two bays wide and four bays long with the main entrance centered in the east gable wall. American or common bond brickwork is used with eight courses of stretchers between header rows. The windows have rounded heads with segmental arches. There is no other decorative brick work associated with the exterior of the building. Windows with narrow casings have six over six pane sashes. There is evidence in the masonry that windows in the east end wall have been altered or are not original. The main entrance is located in the east end wall. A hipped roof porch extending the length of this elevation has been added.

The roof is sheathed with slates in an imbricated pattern and extends beyond the end walls. A small brick chimney is located in the center of the structure.

The school building appears to be in excellent condition.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

The Hopewell School building, a one story brick structure, four bays long and two wide is significant for its architecture and for its contribution to the history of education in Washington County during the late 19th and early 20th centuries. The property on which the school stands was purchased by the Board of County School Commissioners in 1868. The school building would appear to date from after that time, closer to the turn of the century, as suggested by the style of brickwork and the use of segmental arches above the windows.
